

The Times endorses

The Times has endorsed Michael Wahlig for the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees in today's election. Wahlig is competing along with three others for the position formerly held by Ronald Harris. Wahlig is a physicist with Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, an officer of the San Ramon Homeowners Association, and a resident of San Ramon.

A big season for sales

Cash registers were ringing a merry tune throughout the Valley in the second quarter of this year as reports of retail sales soared way over the same period for 1976.

Livermore's taxable sales went to just under $30 million for the April-May-June period, a whopping 27 percent jump over the same three months one year ago.

Pleasanton continued its climb of the last two years, reporting taxable sales of $16,194,000 in the second quarter of 1977; that was 23 percent better than the same three months in 1976.

While the California State Board of Equalization provides no such sales figures for unincorporated areas such as Dublin and San Ramon, still the evidence is that these areas enjoyed the same healthy boost in business as did their city neighbors.

For all unincorporated areas in Alameda County, taxable sales jumped $12 million in that one quarter, and, since Dublin is by far the biggest non-city dollar producer in the county, much of that $12 million increase can be credited to the Valley's third major community.

In Contra Costa County's unincorporated areas (including Danville and San Ramon) the total taxable sales were up just under $10 million, a ten percent increase over 1976.

The 1977 retail sales trend must be particularly encouraging to Livermore's business sector, and to the city treasury which reaps one percent of that taxable business for the municipal budget.

Once the dominant retail base for all of this basin (when Pleasanton was half Livermore's size and Dublin was little more than a rural village), Livermore had seen that leadership eroded in recent years as Dublin's commercial sector boomed, and then Pleasanton began to make its own bid for a fair share of the local market.

In the second quarter for 1975, Livermore reported just over $19 million in taxable sales; by 1976 the increase had been just $4 million, healthy but not spectacular. But in 1977, with a whopping $6.5 million jump for the one quarter, Livermore seems to be making a bid to catch up to the Pleasanton-Dublin West Valley sales conglomerate.

It also appears that much of these suburban gains are at the expense of the metropolitan business giants. Oakland in the second quarter of 1977 recorded $348 million in taxable sales; that is just ten percent over their 1976 report, and well behind the state-wide average of 20 percent in sales' gains.

Hayward continued to be the dominant East Bay retail center outside of Oakland, but there again the $157.5 million in the 1977 report period was just 12 percent ahead of the second quarter in 1976.

The dramatic busnap escape

Shadow Cliffs Lake is the new home for 243 red-eared sunfish, billed as the scourge of the aquatic snail population.

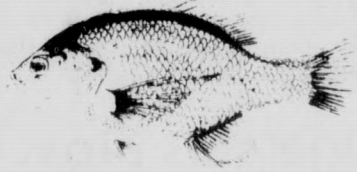

The rub is in the fish

PLEASANTON — A red-eared, snail-eating creature was brought into the Valley by the hundreds last week.

Welcome the red-eared sunfish, a cousin to that snappy fighter, the bluegill, imported into the waters of Shadow Cliffs Recreation Area to eat snails that cause an irritating disease known as swimmers' itch.

Ken Roby, water management specialist for the East Bay Regional Park District, said 243 of the critters were planted in Shadow Cliffs Oct. 26 after being transferred from Jordan Pond in Hayward's Garin Park.

The snails in Shadow Cliffs have carried a parasite that has caused many swimmers to get the disease during the last two years. Authorities deposited quantities of copper sulfate last spring to kill the parasites.

Roby hopes the sunfish will multiply and eventually eliminate the aquatic snail population, which happens to be the red-ear's favorite food.

Starting next year, the park district will analyze the innards of some sunfish specimens that will show whether they are living up to their potential. The "shellcrackers," as they are also known, will usually chomp the snails in great quantities if available, Roby said.

The park district is asking anglers who catch the sunfish to toss them back in so they can go after more snails. Eventually, Roby said, the fish may be plentiful at the former gravel quarry pit.

Posters identifying the newcomers are in evidence at the park so anglers can pitch the sunfish back.

Witness' picture of stifling, dusty van

OAKLAND (AP) — An expert witness revealed Monday that a Chow-chilla bus driver pushed away 419 pounds of steel to free himself and 26 children from an underground tomb.

Robert M. Cooper, a sheriff's criminalist, described for the first time the immense weight which was piled on top of a moving van after it was buried four feet beneath a rock quarry.

Cooper, using a slide projector to illustrate his testimony, showed the small hole by which the children and bus driver Ed Ray had entered their underground prison.

Then he told of the items which the abductors used to seal the hole. "A steel plate covering the hole weighed 150 pounds," Cooper said. On top of that, he said, were two truck batteries weighing 133 pounds and 136 pounds.

Ray had testified that he, with the help of an older child, pushed the heavy objects until they could see light, then scrambled up through the hole to safety.

The criminalist, who examined the scene of the crime the day after the victims escaped in July 1976, told of entering what he called "the subterranean chamber."

"It was dusty," he recalled. "...It was extremely dirty and messy in there. The heat itself was not unbearable. But the humidity was high and it was stifling in the chamber."

He added, "by the time we left, we were soaking wet with sweat. The sweat was running down on my glasses and mixing with the dust. It made it difficult for me to see."

He said they stayed in the van for only 20 minutes and "we voluntarily wanted to get out after that length of time."

Cooper was the second witness of the day as the prosecution continued its effort to prove that the three defendants — James Schoenfeld, 26, Richard Schoenfeld, 23, and Fred Woods, 26 — caused bodily harm to the captives they have admitted kidnapping.

If found guilty, the trio would face life in prison without possibility of parole.

Deputy district attorney Joanne Pirelli, attempting to impeach the testimony of two of her own witnesses, called to the witness stand a male nurse who indicated initial examinations of the children were too cursory to be authoritative.

Murray, SR ink teacher contracts

DUBLIN — Murray School District board members last night ratified a contract with teachers for 1977-78.

Board members in neighboring San Ramon acted on ratification of a three-year pact also.

Teachers in both districts voted to accept their respective pacts last week, but teachers in the Murray District declined to release the actual contract pending an executive council meeting today.

The salary schedule adopted has an entry level salary of $10,104, going to a top of $20,364.

Most Murray teachers are in the middle or upper ranges or between $13,296 and $15,216.

The schedule reflects a 5 per cent increase at each step of the six columns and is retroactive to July 1, 1977.

The district will also contribute $1,638.60 per year in health and welfare benefits to full-time continuing teachers' Employees who work less than full-time will receive pro-rated fringe benefits.

In other business, curriculum coordinator Les Schmidt reported on the Mentally Gifted Minors program. Murray has had the program since 1971-72.

Murray will be able to accommodate the maximum of 182 students. The maximum yearly program allowance for 1977-78 will be $14,924, according to Schmidt's report.

Schmidt said the district can reach the full yearly enrollment of 364 by testing and certifying 47 students for a maximum state identification allowance of $2,250 for the 1977-78 year. Trustees also awarded to T.L. Bake and Sons for the Fredrickson School conversion project, accepted a statement of district objectives for 1977-78, and reviewed the School Improvement program, the basis of AB 65.

LIVERMORE — The weapons program at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory will be discussed in a videotape to be shown several times daily at the Lab's Visitors Center this week.

The 45-minute program, entitled "The LLL Weapons Program — Today and Beyond" — was presented July 20-21 by LLL associate director Harry Reynolds as part of the 25th anniversary lecture series to employees.

The speech, which describes how and why LLL designs weapons, will be aired weekdays at 10:15 a.m., 12:15 p.m., 2:15 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. Weekend showings are at 1:15 p.m. and 3:15 p.m.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission and the Alameda County Social Services Commission.

End to Pleasanton turmoil?

Topic: Public safety split

PLEASANTON — The city council will consider separating fire and police into two independent departments tonight.

Such a move could end firemen's unrest and opposition to the city, which began immediately after the public safety department combining both firemen and policemen was formed in 1974.

Under city manager Clay Brown's recommended reorganization, Walt McCloud would be named police chief, Ron Nelson his assistant and the city would hire a fire chief and assistant. McCloud, now director of the public safety department, was police chief before the two departments were combined.

The idea of one overseeing department began with former city manager William Edgar, who felt the fire department needed an outside administrator to shape up the firemen's barate fire and police departments would still be overseen by an administrator — himself — but would have the autonomy of their own chiefs.

In Brown's report requesting the change to council members he states the return to separate departments would not mean less emphasis placed on coordinating the two services. He envisions the two chiefs working closely with him and each other.

Brown has asked council members to take action on his reorganization plan at tonight's meeting, 8 p.m., 30 West Angela Street.

Two die in separate crashes

Two persons were killed and six others injured in two separate auto accidents over the weekend, the California Highway Patrol reported.

At Carnegie Park in Livermore, Mark Francis Ciancio, 23, of San Francisco was killed when his jeep rolled 300 feet down a muddy hillside Saturday afternoon. A passenger, Peter Frusteri Jr., 18, of Zephyr Place in Danville, is in stable condition with head injuries at Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore.

San Ramon

School board vote today

San Ramon Valley voters will decide between four candidates for the San Ramon School District board today.

Vying for the position vacated by Ronald Harris last July are Joan Scott, Don Smith, Karen Stepper, and Michael Wahlig. The winner will serve through March of 1979, at which time the successful board member may run to fill the remainder of Harris' unexpired term, which runs through March of 1981.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. There are a total of 26,986 eligible voters in the 28 precincts.

Ballots will be tabulated at precincts and taken to district offices at 699 Old Orchard Dr. in Danville where they'll be counted and picked up by county election officials. Persons wishing to know the vote count may call district offices after 9 p.m. tonight.

Wahlig and Stepper have been the only active campaigners, though all appeared at candidates nights sponsored by the San Ramon Jaycees and AAUW.

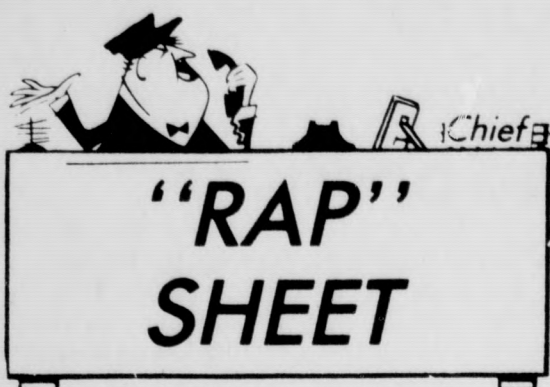

Mrs. Stepper served on the district's Citizens Committee for Year Round Schools, Mrs. Scott ran for the board last March, Smith is a salesman and high school athletics official, and Wahlig is a Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory physicist and long-time leader in San Ramon Homeowners Association affairs.

Th low-key "campaign" has not been marked by any burning issues or clashes.

Th successful candidate will be seated with a board now composed of Ed Best, president, Donald Sledge, Gregory McCoy and Jane Upp. Sledge and McCoy were elected along with Harris last March.

Two other school districts, Martinez Unified and John Swett Unified, will be holding elections today elsewhere in Contra Costa County.

You gotta be a football hero

"Defense, defense!" cheers Dave Elkins, a Bomber's cheerleader, at the annual Mothers Football game played Saturday night at Amador High School. Defense was the name of the game as the all-women Bombers and Roadrunner battled for naught in a game that ended in a scoreless tie. At one point, though, it was looking up for the Roadrunners as Donna Caci (upper left) made good yardage on this sideline sweep. After the game (left) the Bomber's No. 32, Pinky Anderson and The Roadrunner's Madeline Reynolds congratulate each other on the game. This is the second year the moms have gone on the gridiron while the dads in their miniskirts manned the pom poms for the benefit of Pleasanton Junior Football League. Tom Janis of KGO-TV returned again this year as special guest for this special sporting event.

Official skepticism over package sewer plant

PLEASANTON — If Carl Nipper's 120 unit development on Sunol Ridge, as now planned, is approved by Alameda county supervisors those houses would be endowed with a miraculous package sewer plant capable of sophisticated sewage treatment — or so one is lead to believe.

Aqueonics Inc. is using an age-old method to combat local fear of small, independent sewer plants: telling people just what they want to hear even if that is a great exaggeration of the truth.

In a plug for his plant to supervisors at their last meeting, Aqueonics president Neal Nielson said his treatment plant could turn out water "as good as many tap waters you'll find in homes." But Aqueonics' own physicist Bob Hill told The Times the plant's effluent "is not drinking water by any means."

Aqueonics is also boasting to city and county officials that Reno has opted to use its system in a development with over 300 homes, so the city won't be forced to expand its own municipal sewer plant.

But phone calls to Reno prove that isn't so.

"Reno has authorized one test plant which will service about 30 to 40 homes," said Art Molin of Reno's sewer department. Molin added that the test will run for at least a year because the city isn't sure the package plant can produce clean water. And he said Aqueonics does not yet have a state discharge permit or a final agreement with Reno — both needed before even the testing can begin.

Ten minutes after Molin said the firm had no permit, president Nielson told The Times, "The state (Nevada) has already issued the waste discharge permit."

In fact, that permit won't be issued for at least three weeks while the application is on public notice. But news that Nielson is telling officials in California that his plant has Reno's wholehearted approval was no surprise to Molin.

When Reno first considered package plants several months ago, Aqueonics told officials there that Alameda county and the state of California were "seriously considering" using the firm's sewage treatment process.

But through several phone calls Molin learned there is enough evidence to bring Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton to trial Nov. 21 for murder.

The case will be prosecuted by Deputy District Attorney Tom Orloff, whose roots go back to Pleasanton early in this century.

Newton returned voluntarily from Cuba to face trial on charges that he allegedly killed an admitted health department about the testing being done on an Aqueonics plant in Morgan Hill indicate they are not satisfied with test data at this point.

Being tested is a 70,000 gallon plant which treats less than a thousand gallons of sewage a day. Aqueonics claims the results, relatively clean water, prove the plant is exceptional. But several officials and employees who spoke with The Times are skeptical.

Voicing that feeling, Reno's Molin said, "The only accurate way to test the water quality of a 70,000 gallon plant is to put 70,000 gallons of sewage through it and then see what comes out."

Problems seen for new park

DANVILLE — A developer who wanted to build homes on a site designated for a flood control basin and park predicted Thursday that the park will upset neighbors.

Developer Lee S. Scarlett was obviously smarting from the decision by the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors to use the 25 acres on Blackhawk Road for the flood control project.

He and two other area developers had planned to build 40 homes valued at about $200,000 each on the site, he said. Now they will wait for the county's offer for the land, and could face condemnation proceedings for the property.

"It's going to be a can of worms," said Scarlett of the park plan. "And I don't think the people of Diablo want that."

He predicted the community park planned by the R-7 Park District will draw users from throughout the county, thus increasing traffic and disrupting the quiet atmosphere of Diablo.

Tom Hansen, a staff member of R-7, said the park district will try to mitigate any nearby residents' concerns with public hearings.

Robert Marble, 19, of 3625 Leahy Way in Livermore, the driver of the other car, received minor injuries, the highway patrol said.

Other persons in Marble's car who were injured were Hilary Hamm, 17, of 4364 Colgate Way; Kim Farris, 17, of 1624 Second St; and Richard Masterson, 22, of 1624 Second St.

Both accidents are still under investigation.

Grand jurors want their advice used

BY PAT KEEBLE
Lester News Bureau
MARTINEZ — For years, grand jurors have complained that public officials ignore their recommendations, but now one former jury is going to try to do something about it.

Members of the 1976-77 jury, which was disbanded in June, are, like juries before them, irked because the Board of Supervisors and county administration appear to pay little attention to the reports the jurors worked on for a year.

They are calling together the members of other former grand juries, many of whom have made similar complaints about their own reports, in an attempt to form a former grand jurors' association to watchdog local governments, the Board of Supervisors in particular.

A meeting of former jurors has been called for Thursday at 7:45 p.m. at the office of Supervisor Robert Schroder, 3338 Mt. Diablo Blvd. Lafayette, in the fire station.

State law requires county boards of supervisors to respond to grand jury recommendations on their civil studies of local governments, but it does not require them to do anything about the reports.

This year for the first time the board set a specific time on its agenda three weeks ago to review the 1976-77 report and the responses recommended by County Administrator Arthur Will.

Apparently the only difference between the board's action then and in previous years was that Will's report was read in public rather than just presented in writing to the supervisors.

The supervisors, as they do every year, merely accepted Will's report as their own for the purpose of filing responses to the jury's recommendations.

"The members of the jury making the recommendations were not notified the board was going to review them," commented one former juror, Lester Broad of Walnut Creek, members of the current jury were notified, however.

Although several former jurors found out by word of mouth and attended, they were given no chance to comment, Brown said.

The responses to most of the recommendations were unsatisfactory as far as the jurors were concerned.

They indicated in some cases that the county government had no control, that subjects were "being studied" with no indication of how the administration felt about the recommendations, that what was recommended would require a change of law, or such phrases as "concur within established policy and budget limitations," without indicating how these would affect the recommendation.

The jurors pointed out that the supervisors frequently ask for, and get, a change in the law when it suits them.

Animal lovers keep fighting to perserve their menagerie

By KATHLEEN MACLAY
Times Staff Writer

DANVILLE — "We got one bird and one dog — and things got ridiculous," said Georgia Stark of her family's pet collection.

The remark was half in jest, but Contra Costa County planners seem to agree.

For the past two years, the county and the Lloyd Stark family have been battling over the three llamas, eight African Pigmy goats, 18 terriers, a dozen birds, one miniature Sicilian donkey, and flocks of ducks, geese and chickens that live with the Starks on La Gonda Way.

The Starks said they will comply with county livestock codes as soon as all their neighbors do.

According to the codes, property owners are allowed one head of livestock per half acre. The Starks would be allowed three.

They don't deny that they violate the rule, but they do say the law is illogical and they are being unfairly singled out for enforcement.

Stark said his animals are "not crowded at all" on the 1.6 acres of corrals, cages, sheds and open space.

And it is unfair, he said, to consider small animals such as goats in the same category as horses or cattle.

But the county says rules are rules, and wants the Starks to thin out their herd. So far, the Starks have managed to fend off criminal complaints initiated by the planning department by placing newspaper advertisements for the animals — with unsuccessful results.

Mrs. Stark said they have tried to sell and even give away some of the animals, but only when it was for the good of the animal, not to comply with county codes.

"I'd go along with it (the animal limit) if I thought the animals looked abused or anything," said Mrs. Stark. Even John Marin, code enforcement officer for the planning department, is a little remorseful about the idea.

"It's unfortunate," said Marin. "He (Stark) maintains it (the property) quite well." But Marin said neighbors have complained about the animals.

And the Starks dismissed the complaints as grumblings from a woman unhappy with the neighborhood in general.

They argue that follow-up on the complaint — which was made about two years ago — should be dropped because the woman has moved to New Jersey.

The Starks also complain that if they are required to conform to the animal code, then so should many of their neighbors who they say, also have too many animals.

"You get to the point where they're picking on us," said Mrs. Stark.

Marin says he is overloaded with work and doesn't have time to investigate the county for livestock violations until he gets a call about a specific case.

He said he doesn't plan to let the Stark situation go unresolved.

But Stark has challenged the planners to take the matter to court, believing he can convince the judge the code is wrong.

"I'll bet you ten to one I'll never hear from them again," said Stark.

Aliens arrested

PLEASANTON — U.S. Border Patrol agents of the Livermore Sector, who cover the 49 counties of Northern California, arrested 3,958 undocumented aliens during October. This was 1,390 less than were arrested the previous month and 902 less than were arrested in October, 1976.

Of the total arrested, 3,584 or 91 per cent were employed and earning the following wages: 74 — less than $2.50 per hour; 3,425 — $2.50 to $4.49 per hour; 70 — $4.50 to $6.49 per hour; and 15 — more than $6.50 per hour. Thirteen were receiving welfare or other public assistance.

Agents of the Livermore Station, who cover the counties of Alameda, Contra Costa, Santa Clara and eight other Northern California counties, arrested 280 undocumented aliens in October. Of that number, 271 or 97 per cent were employed at the time of arrest.

Fairlands 'champs'

Brenda Mills' third grade class at Fairlands School in Pleasanton celebrated its membership award last week by going to the miniature golf course at the Fairgrounds for a game of golf and fun. The students won the membership contest conducted by the Fairlands Parent/Faculty Club with 86 per cent of their parents joining. A happy young lady (seated, center) holds trophy presented by Pat Fernandes, PFC membership chairwoman. Bonnie Green of Fairlands PFC reports that 90 per cent of the families at Fairlands have joined the club this year. Gene Vargas is principal at the K-5 school.

Money on their minds

DANVILLE — Money will be an almost constant topic at Monday night's session of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Board.

Among topics of board discussion will be appointment of a new citizens' advisory committee on budget and finance to replace one which was terminated after adoption of the 1977-78 budget.

The board also will review an agreement between the district and San Ramon Valley Education Association, giving teachers a 5.7 percent pay raise in a three-year contract.

The contract, if approved, would be retroactive to last July 1.

Contracts for several district administrators also will be up for board action.

Still on the subject of money, the board will consider a district administration request to buy smoke detectors and fire alarms for 16 schools in the San Ramon Valley.

Education speaker tonight

William Glasser, president and founder of the Institute for Reality Therapy is scheduled as tonight's speaker in the "Awareness in Education" lecture series sponsored by the Livermore Valley Unified School District. Lectures are held at St. Charles Borromeo Church, 1315 Lomitas Ave. at 7 p.m.

The author of "Schools Without Failure," Glasser will discuss motivation in schools and alternatives for developing mental strength and discipline. He is a former consultant with the California Youth Authority and has written other books on mental health and social problems.

LIFE IS A MASQUERADE

Body language is a silent language which sometimes speaks louder than words. Or we may hide a lot of what we feel, and our life may be a masquerade.

We use body language consciously or unconsciously every day of our lives. The way we sit, the way we stand, walk, move our hands and feet, hold our head, the attitudes and movements we take with our bodies, tell much about our feelings, though we might like to keep them a secret.

In his book "Body Language," Julius Fast tells us that someone who acts normal, or sane, sends out the least amount of information about himself with body language. Someone who is mentally disturbed wishes to send a message to the world about his problem, so that he might get help, and he acts out his insanity. This explains the reason for bizarre behavior.

There are those of us who are not insane, and instead of trying to communicate disturbed feelings, we try to mask our feelings. But our involuntary reactions cannot always be covered up, though we try.

Smiles are sometimes frowns with masks on. We smile a lot, some of our smiles don't mean we're happy. We may just be trying to get along in the world. We may think a smile will smooth our way. We may be right. But underneath it all, we may be seething with rage, while trying to get through the day preserving our "good guy" image.

The hidden feelings beneath the mask must go somewhere. Where do they go? According to Julius Fast, these emotions come popping out unexpectedly in situations, such as driving, when we do not feel such a need to mask. Then a string of surprising profanity may come out at the least provocation from another driver's little boo boo.

Not only in a car, where we are unknown and feel we can act out our outrage, but persons in mental institutions also drop their masks. Does that explain the term: "Crazy driver?"

Some aborigines must not look into one another's eyes while talking to one another, while in America one must look into the other's eyes while holding a conversation. It's obvious the aborigine has not read Emily Post.

The man in the clown suit may discard his mask of inhibitions and be able to "clown around." The puppeteer may express his feelings freely through his puppets, although he may be inhibited in real life. The actor or singer may, while "on," find it unnecessary to mask in any way. Perhaps this explains why a well-known singer stutters uncontrollably during conversation, but never has a stuttering problem while singing.

So, to stay sane, don't talk to aborigines, read etiquette books and make sure your mask is on straight, except while driving, when you should take it off to swear at other drivers. It's the American way.

You can bank on it— 25 years experience

Freda Collins helped open the first savings and loan in the Valley. Now she is running it.

Not all bankers are somber looking fellows who dress in vested suits adorned with a thin gold watch fob. One 25-year veteran banker here is not a somber looking fellow, in fact, she's not a fellow at all.

Freda Garibaldi Collins doesn't wear three-piece suits, and the thin gold chain she wears is a necklace. But don't let looks fool you, she is as accomplished in the field as anyone in the Valley.

Mrs. Collins' banking career started in Pleasanton 25 years ago when only four banks, two in Pleasanton and two in Livermore, served the entire Valley.

She worked as an accountant at the Pleasanton branch of Bank of America. In those days, she said, the operation was so small that if a bank check had been filled out but not signed, you could tell by the handwriting who made the omission.

As World War II escalated and Camp Parks filled, Mrs. Collins was sent over to open a mini-branch of the Pleasanton Bank of America.

The bank was two rooms on the second floor and "as soon as I opened the door in the morning the steps were packed until closing," she recalled.

The Camp Parks facility lasted about three years and when it closed, Mrs. Collins left banking for accounting in Valley Mrs. Collins soon found that she preferred to work with people than with figures so when she heard talk of savings and loan opening in Livermore she told the ten locals with interests in it, "If there's a job, I better be getting it." She did, and admitted, "I was just amazed."

That was 20 years ago and the savings and loan she helped to start, Pleasanton and Livermore Savings and Loan, was the first in the Valley.

That establishment has been sold twice, the first time for $13 million. "It was very profitable. No one had put up anywhere near that," she said.

The second time it was sold, Home Savings and Loan purchased it and got a bonus — Mrs. Collins.

She is now an assistant vice-president with Home and three weeks ago returned to the Livermore office after three years in Oakland and Hayward as branch manager.

She had been managing the Oakland office when officials from the company asked her if she had a choice of any of the branches which would she chose. "I said Livermore and they said, 'Alright, you can have it.' It was a great day."

There has been a "tremendous" change in the Livermore office in the past 20 years, said Mrs. Collins. "There is a lot more money and a lot more people."

She said she used to have to talk people into putting money into the savings and loan because they were still pretty new institutions and people were not sure of them.

Mrs. Collins had her banking career well under way when she married Dr. George Collins 14 years ago. She never considered quitting to stay at home. "I love it. I've always enjoyed working and I enjoy the people."

And anyway, "I hate housework. You clean something up and you turn around and it is a mess again."

"Women have a great future in banking," said Mrs. Collins. "There are so many fields; marketing, personnel and data processing, and they are all banking really."

The Livermore office is staffed completely with women as is the Hayward Home Savings. "We even had a woman gardener in Hayward," said Mrs. Collins who added, "I have a firm belief that anything a man can do, a woman can do better — but don't tell anyone that."

Collection recalls history

Calling all collectors of military insignia! Bill Lake of Livermore would like to get together with you and perhaps form a club.

Lake's interest in collecting the military sleeve patches goes back to his own service in the 95th Infantry Division in 1944 and 1945. His collection covers all World War II military insignia of the 1940s, all infantry and armored tank corps, all Air Force bombers, Air Force squadrons, fighter squadrons, and Navy and Marine units.

It adds up to a lot of nostalgia for those involved in the war and history for many others.

Lake's mounted collection includes such famous memorabilia as the 14th Air Force Flying Tigers, the Eighth Bomber Command of Twelve O'Clock High fame, as well as the 20th Air Force whose B-29s dropped the atomic bombs on Japan.

If you're a World War II memorabilia buff, or would like to trade patches of the era, you may contact Bill Lake at 1094 Madrone Way in Livermore.

Much history is embodied in these military insignia of World War II displayed by Bill Lake.

HOW TO SIT CORRECTLY

A back's best friend is a straight, hard chair. If you can't get the chair you prefer, learn to sit properly on whatever chair you get. To correct sitting position from forward slump: Throw head well back, then bend it forward to pull in the chin. This will straighten the back. Now tighten abdominal muscles to raise the chest. Check position frequently.

Correct way to sit while driving, close to pedals. Use seat belt or hard backrest, available commercially.

TV slump leads to "dowager's hump," strains neck and shoulders.

Relieve strain by sitting well forward, flatten back by tightening abdominal muscles, and cross knees.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been married for ten years and my husband has always been a very excitable man. If something goes wrong at his office, or if there's a lot of traffic on the way home, he may explode if dinner isn't ready on time. When this happens, he sometimes hits me. He's never hit the children. I'd never stand for that and he knows it. I've gotten used to his mean streak. Not that I like it, but I don't see there's much I can do about it. Last week, he went on a rampage. I ended up with a black eye and a swollen arm. My neighbor was shocked when I told her. She said I should report him. Since he doesn't bother the kids, I don't know if I should. —A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: Your husband's y are aware that a man they should love and respect is beating his mother. It's bound to have a profound emotional and psychological effect. This is an extremely unhealthy environment for your family.

I believe you should try to reason with your husband when he's not angry. Tell him that you will not tolerate physical abuse. If he attacks you, call for help. Call the police, and if they take no action, then take the children and get out of the house. Go to a neighbor's, to a hotel, to the police station, or to a community service organization in your area.

Children who witness violence in the home grow up believing that violence is the acceptable way to cope with problems. Children model themselves on their parents. Take action immediately to protect them and yourself.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is a professional athlete and our 14-year-old son is also deeply involved in sports. They both suffer so much when they lose, it upsets me terribly and I find it difficult to handle. My husband often goes off by himself and won't talk to anyone in the family for days. His temper often gets out of hand when he loses. He becomes angry over the slightest thing, and verbally abuses me and our son. There's no joy living with this kind of rage and temperament. I can see my son taking on the same attitudes and I don't know if I can cope with two males who behave like children every time they lose. —M.J.

DEAR M.J.: Unless your husband changes his behavior, you can expect to have an increasing problem with your son. Children imitate their parents who are their role models. This is especially true when the father is in a profession the son may aspire to.

It would be ideal if your son or husband could put more emphasis on competing against himself, but I realize this is something over which you have little control. A person's goal should be to do better than he did before as this provides the greatest impetus for growth. It's the pleasure of playing the game, of participating and stretching oneself that should provide the interest in almost any activity.

Dr. Lee Salk, professor of psychology in pediatrics and psychiatry at the Cornell University Medical College, says the attitude of the adult is the key to whether a child develops a sense of his own integrity. People have more difficulty cooperating than competing in life.

Your husband is setting a bad example of sportsmanship and team play. Try to talk to him and let him know what he's doing to his son.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will all gall stones show up on X rays? I had my gall bladder removed a year ago. A year has passed since then and I have lots of pain in the area where the gall bladder was. I have had X rays and no stones show up.

I have heard if one has stones that aren't removed they can cause cancer. Is there any other way except by X ray that they can locate gall stones?

DEAR READER — In general, there are two types of gall stones but there can be mixtures of materials that form stones. The stones formed chiefly from cholesterol are not opaque on X rays. That is why a person takes gall bladder dye before a gall bladder examination.

The dye is opaque and concentrates inside the gall bladder. The transparent cholesterol stones then stand out from the solid appearing dye and can be seen.

The stones made from bile pigment are small, hard stones that are visible on X rays without dye and some stones contain other minerals that make them visible.

The opaque stones can be seen by X ray even if they are in the bile system after the gall bladder has been removed, and if you inject opaque material the others can be seen as well. There are techniques to visualize by X ray the entire biliary tree.

Discomfort from abnormal drainage of the bile may still be present after an operation. Then there is that frequent problem that the pain the patient was bothered with may not have been caused by the gall stones at all, even if stones were present. The main offender here is pain in the colon, in the upper right abdomen over the liver area. A spastic colon often causes pain in this area whether or not the person has gall stones. When the gall stones are seen on X ray, it is then assumed that they are the cause of the pain — which may not be the case at all.

In such a case, after the gall stones are removed the spastic colon persists and the pain in the upper right abdomen persists too. The patient may think it is because the gall bladder disease has not been cured, but the truth may be the gall bladder never had anything to do with the pain.

That doesn't mean the gall bladder should not have been removed. The weight of evidence is in favor of removing a diseased gall bladder if you have a good surgeon available and are otherwise in good health and unlikely to have complications from surgery. I might add that all the surgeons I know tell me they are very good, but some of them seem to have better results than others.

If you have colon complaints, you may need to go on a program to improve your colon function, including increasing the cereal bulk in your diet.

There is an increased incidence of cancer of gall bladders with stones. Since yours has been removed, I think you don't need to worry about that.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DO DIMES AND QUARTERS HAVE MILLED RIMS?"

KATHY SCHUMANN MASSAPEQUA, NY

A. THE RIDGES ON THE RIMS OF HIGH-VALUE COINS WERE MEANT TO PREVENT DISHONEST PEOPLE FROM TRIMMING THE EDGES, REDUCING THE VALUE OF THE COIN.

Probably you have noticed the ridges on the rims of United States dimes and quarters. The ridges were originally put there to prevent people from trimming the edges of the coins.

At one time, coins were made of silver and gold. Each coin had a certain size and was given a certain value, depending on the amount of gold or silver it contained. Silver dimes, for instance, contained 10 cents' worth of silver.

People sometimes cheated by trimming a little gold or silver off the edges of the coins. This lowered the coins' value.

To prevent this, coinmakers began making coins with "milled" edges — edges that were raised or grooved so that it was easy to see when a coin had been trimmed.

Today coins are made of less valuable metals. But coinmakers still put ridges on coins because people are used to seeing them that way.

Half dollars and "silver" dollars have ridges for the same reason.

Nov. 8, 1977

This coming year you may surprise others and even yourself by your imaginative approach to money matters. Put those ideas to work for you. There's a good chance for increased income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your concern for others is commendable today. However, you should be very careful not to overextend yourself in a misguided attempt to do good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Inside tips on big deals from well-meaning friends should be carefully eyed today. They could be like a glittering watch with no mainspring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For the sake of good public relations today, treat everyone impartially. As soon as you bestow the least bit of favoritism, someone will be hurt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your advice is quite sound today and will be very helpful. The problem is that you don't take to heart the same wisdom you impart.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) To begin with, this isn't a good day to take gambles. The odds against you are even greater if you have no voice in calling the shots.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to impress others today, you may resort to embellishing the facts. This will probably have exactly the opposite effect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, you desire grandeur. Bigness isn't always beautiful or best, so stay within the realm of practicality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although your judgment is amazingly accurate in many ways, in financial affairs you miss the boat by failing to see the small parts that make up the whole.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, relying on Lady Luck and your good looks may be a mistake. Both can help, but it will take some honest effort to finish the job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be able today to distinguish between optimism and false hope, or the sand castles will be swept away with the first tide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions contributing to your stability are a mixed bag today. Unfortunately, misplaced faith may lure in the wrong direction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's very important today that an influential contact continues to hold you in high regard. Do nothing that would lower you in his eyes.

win at bridge

South's three-spade bid showed a solid suit. Declarer looked over dummy, remarked that he guessed he had underbid and wished he was in seven. He let the club come around to his king, cashed two high spades, burst into happy laughter when East showed out, played out the trumps and made only six on account of the horrendous trump break.

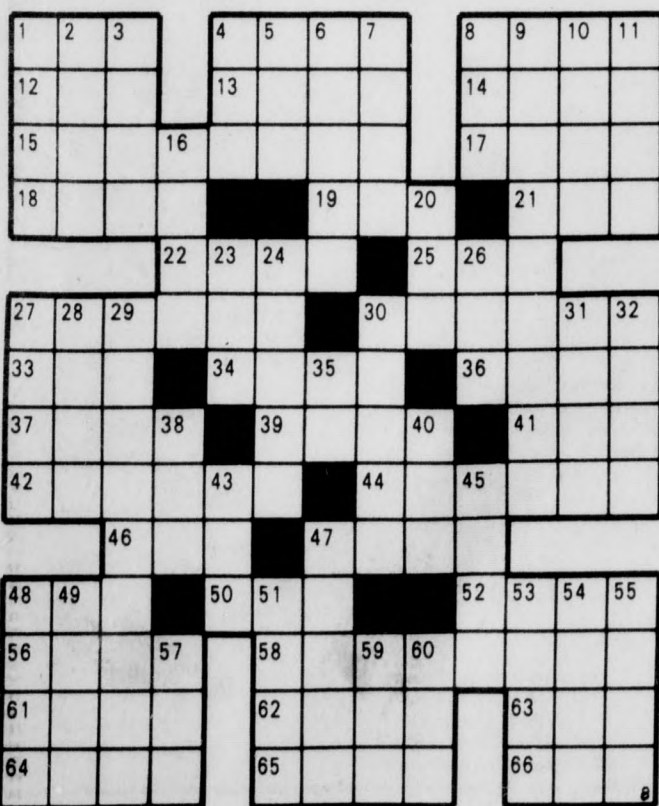

The Spaniards started with an artificial club and somehow or other South became declarer at six no-trump after North bid all around the mulberry bush. A heart was opened. He won the trick, came to his hand with the king of clubs, led the ace of spades, noted the spade nine, then worked out the play to make six notrump.

It wasn't a tough one. He simply cashed the other three top spades while discarding one heart and three clubs and then led the 10 of diamonds for a finesse.

Lee Marvin's newest stunt

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Marvin, the hard-charging, Oscar-winning actor, appears on TV about as often as the sun rises in the West. But he'll be appearing in a two-hour NBC special next Nov. 17.

Not as a villain or semi-good guy, though. He's guest-hosting "Superstunt," in which Hollywood's stuntmen and women demonstrate how they take the lumps while the actors take the bows.

He says he also is doing a stunt or two, but has left the truly hard stuff — such as a midair leap from one plane to another — to the professionals he's known in his 26-year career in films here.

"They're all friends of mine and we've had a good relationship over the years," he said. "So when they asked me to represent them, I said, 'Hell, yes, be glad to.'"

Marvin, 53, spoke by phone from his home in Tucson, Ariz. At the time he was getting set for a trip to Australia for purposes of catching marlin before starting work on his next movie, "Big Red One."

The film is about the famed 1st Infantry Division in Europe during World War II. Marvin was in that war, as a Marine, and was wounded in combat against the Japanese on the Pacific island of Saipan.

Asked where he was hit, he promptly replied: "I was a good Marine. Now where does a good Marine get hit?"

A chance guess — in what the Navy calls the aft section — proved correct. "That's right," he said. "All my pals laughed, said, 'Oh, boy, 'Captain Marvel' got it.'" He laughed, too, but the truth is, he spent 15 months recovering from the wound.

During that grim period, the tall, rugged New York native met an off-Broadway theater owner who cast him in a play, "Roadside." Marvin decided to study acting formally and has been in the dodge ever since.

What a World: Free IRA! Free Keogh!

Don't pay expensive yearly trustee fees. At World, your retirement account will always be free!

IRA and Keogh plans are two great ways to set aside tax-sheltered funds for retirement. There's only one problem. Many institutions charge you a trustee fee each and every year. And those that do advertise "free" retirement accounts often mean that it's free just for the first year only.

That doesn't seem fair. These are the same institutions that always ask you to save with them. But when you go to save for your retirement — perhaps the most important savings of all — they charge you for it! It's different in our World. There are no yearly administrative costs, commissions, or trustee fees to chip away at your savings. We set up and maintain your account absolutely free. And we guarantee never to charge you fees or commissions for the life of your account!

Already have a retirement account somewhere else?

No problem. Let us tell you about the "rollover" provisions of the law. Rollover allows you to transfer your present IRA/Keogh account to World. We'll handle all the paperwork, absolutely free.

Rollover also applies if your company has a retirement plan, and you intend leaving your employer at some time in the future. You can avoid paying federal taxes now on the benefits you'll receive from that plan by rolling them over into a World IRA. Come in and ask us about all the advantages of rollover.

Now, with a 3-year minimum term, earn 8.06%/7.75% on your IRA or Keogh account.

Now you can earn World's highest rate on your IRA or Keogh funds, in just half the normal term, and without meeting the usual $1,000 minimum balance requirement. We'll even waive the customary "early withdrawal penalties" when you retire, as early as age 59½.

New this year — you may be able to shelter an additional $250 in a Householder IRA.

World has all the answers.

World Savings has an ongoing program of employee training that covers every aspect of IRA and Keogh plans, including the latest breaking news. Whatever your question, you can count on getting an up-to-the-minute answer at the World Savings office nearest you.

IRA and Keogh plans have been called "the biggest break for taxpayers in history." Come in to World now and let us show you how simple it is to start a plan, and how much the plan can mean during your retirement years. You'll see. Your future looks a lot rosier in our World.

*Effective annual yield when principal and interest are held in the account and compounded continuously. Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificates.

Wightman Cup opens

OAKLAND — Chris Evert, showing signs of physical wear near the end of her long tennis year, leads the United States team against Great Britain in the 49th Wightman Cup matches beginning tonight at the Coliseum Arena.

The team competition, in which the U.S. holds a 39-9 series lead, will be played tonight, Thursday and Saturday. Seven matches, five singles and two doubles are on the schedule.

Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champion, is captain of the British team. She beat Evert in the Wimbledon semi-finals.

Evert, however, holds a 3-2 edge in tournament matches between the pair this year.

Evert says, "This year, I think I played my hardest, busiest schedule of all, at least up until Forest Hills." She was ordered to rest after the U.S. Open at Forest Hills. Her doctor told her she had the beginnings of a stress fracture in her right leg.

A week ago, in the opening round of the women's $250,000 event at Rancho Mirage, Evert was beaten, 7-6, 6-4, by Diane Fromholtz.

Yet, despite all that, team mate Rosie Casals believes Evert will be ready to meet Wade in their opening match tonight. Sue Barker of England faces comebacking Billie Jean King in the second singles match.

"Chris is loose, she doesn't want to lose to Wade," Casals said, "We're all up for it." Even the veteran King. "Billie Jean is very fit and she's been playing well," Casals claimed. Others on the five-women U.S. roster are Jo Anne Russell, a 23-year old Floridian, and Kirstien Shaw.

"When it comes to the team situation," says Casals, "everyone's been in team tennis before. Even outside of tennis we're good friends and we do it for each other."

"We're a very compatible and very strong group."

Wade will be playing in her 13th

Wightman Cup. Others on the British team are Barker, Lesley Charles, Sue Mappin and Michelle Tyler.

The American's won last year's competition in London, 5-2, but Britain has won two of the last three meetings.

King, after four knee operations and a self-imposed semi-retirement has come back strongly this season and looks forward to meeting the Britons.

"I'm pleased to have been selected to represent the U.S. again," King said recently. "With Wade and Barker playing for Great Britain, they'll be tough. But I've played on eight winning Wightman Cup teams and I'll be busting my gut to make this the ninth."

Meanwhile, the Americans are still piecing together their line-up, looking for the best match-ups and combinations.

Said Casals yesterday, "We're just trying to find out what we think is going to work, we're trying different combinations to get the best one."

"We're going to wait until the last possible minute before we announce the doubles teams."

A modest $50,000 prize money is at stake in the event and, though Wade told a reporter she'd trade the Cup's winner's share for a win at Rancho Mirage, most of the players on both sides are up for the tourney on the patriotic aspect alone, according to the U.S.' Russell.

Wolves, 'Stangs end hopes

Valley high school football teams will be playing out their schedules Friday night with no hope of an East Bay Athletic League title in the balance.

The big game will be played in Danville, where Monte Vista, still undefeated in EBAL play at 5-0-1, hosts San Ramon, 5-1, in the title decider.

The Mustangs remained in fifth place in this morning's version of the East Bay Prepwriter's Association 4-A football poll, missing fourth-place Pittsburg by a scant point.

San Ramon moved from ninth to seventh following their 16-13 win over Granada Friday. MV defeated Amador Valley 18-7 and improved their overall record to 7-1-1. The Wolves are now 7-2.

Livermore, 3-2-1 league and 3-3-1 overall, the only team left with a clear title shot before last week's games, slipped out of the poll and into the honorable mention list following a shocking 19-7 defeat at the hands of previously - winless Foothill. The Cowboys were the only team to escape both San Ramon and Monte Vista without a loss — they beat SR 14-6 and tied MV 14-14 — but lost crucial decisions to Dublin (25-0) and the Falcons in failing to defend their EBAL co-championship.

The other champion from last year, Granada, 2-4 league and 4-5 overall, had early season problems and now needs to defeat Livermore Friday night to insure at least a sixth-place standing.

Foothill can gain sixth place with a win over California at home Friday, coupled with a Cowboy win over Granada. The Falcons, now 1-7-1, beat the Grizzlies (0-6 league, 2-7 overall) last year in the first meeting ever between the two schools.

Dublin (4-2, 6-3) and Amador Valley (3-3, 4-5) meet in Pleasanton Friday in the final game scheduled. The Gaels, who made the honorable mention list again this week, lead the league in every category except individual passing but have lost a pair of contests to Monte Vista and San Ramon to knock them from the race.

The Gaels lead the EBAL in team offense and team defense, while running back Jon Batchelor leads all rushers and receiver Dan Pearson is the league's top receiver. Quarterback Derrick Woolridge is third in passing, but if you combine his statistics with former QB Mike Hardy's, the rating for Dublin's passers is the best in the EBAL.

San Ramon's Guy Houston is the runaway leader in that category now, however, with a 106.9 rating. He has completed 59.8 per cent of his passes with ten touchdowns and an Jose ended up in a tie for first place in the poll this week, each team getting four first place votes. Undefeated Antioch was a distant third.

In the 2-A poll, Encinal of Alameda is a unanimous choice for number one.

Virginia Wade will be looking for dividends from her returns.

NFL races are going in circles

On any given weekend, Commissioner Pete Rozelle is fond of saying, any National Football League team is capable of beating or, for that matter, losing to any other member of the 28-club lodge.

And if you don't believe the boss, check out what has been going on in his playground this season.

The barometer for any league's success is balance and, except for unbeaten Dallas and winless Tampa Bay, the NFL has been a picture of parity this season.

Eight weeks into the season, only five teams are more than two games over .500 and the standings reflect the kind of topsy turvy year it has been.

Three division leaders — Cleveland in the American Conference Central and Minnesota and Los Angeles in the National Conference Central and West, respectively — have very ordinary 5-3 records.

Upsets continue to dot each week's action, leaving favorites stumbling and underdogs scoring victori

Item — Buffalo, battered 56-17 a week earlier by expansionist Seattle and playing without injured O.J. Simpson and on the road against powerful New England, stuns the favored Patriots 24-14.

Item — San Diego jolts Miami with a last-minute touchdown to tag the Dolphins with only their second defeat of the season. Then, sky-high after the emotional victory, the Chargers go into Detroit and are blanked by the Lions 20-0.

Item — Los Angeles embarrasses Minnesota 35-3 on a Monday night game, then loses to lowly New Orleans the following Sunday. The Saints, obviously inspired by beating the Rams, then lose to Philadelphia 28-7.

Item — Minnesota recovers from its one-sided Monday night loss to Los Angeles by beating Atlanta, then returns triumphantly home only to be battered by St. Louis 27-7.

Item — Pittsburgh and Atlanta have both lost their last two games and both are 4-4 for the season. Yet, both are only one game behind their division leaders, the Steelers tied with Houston and Cincinnati behind Cleveland in the AFC Central and the Falcons alone in second behind the Rams in the NFC West.

The Central Divisions in both conferences have confounded analysis.

In the AFC, Houston dropped three straight games after a 3-1 start, then the Oilers looked like Super Bowl champions Sunday, battering Chicago 47-0. Cincinnati had lost four of its first six games and seemed set to drop out of the race. Then the Bengals won two straight, including a 13-10 decision at Cleveland Sunday. Pittsburgh had won two straight for a 4-3 record and seemed ready to take control. Then the Steelers dropped their next two and find themselves in the AFC Central tied for second place.

In the NFC, Minnesota dropped its opener in overtime to Dallas, but recovered to win four straight. Since then, however, the Vikings have lost two of three and are just one game ahead of erratic Detroit, which scored the first NFC victory of the season over an AFC team this season by beating San Diego Sunday.

Chicago, favored to challenge the Vikings for the title this season, have lost three of the last four, including Sunday's embarrassment at Houston.

Lancers spear Benicia via two late scores

Scoring two touchdowns in the second half the Dublin Lancers topped the Benicia Wolfpack 12-6 in Tri-Valley Football League action last weekend.

Dave Newberry, operating out of a shotgun offense, passed for 85 yards and ran for 54 to set up the Lancers' two touchdowns.

Halfback Jon Hunter passed 10 yards to Greg Smith for the first Lancer score. Later in the fourth quarter, Dave Morris plunged over from the one for the winning touchdown. The score capped a 70-yard drive.

The Dublin squad gained 210 yards on the day against the wolves.

Dave Morris led the defense with three interceptions and three key tackles. Rich Nielsen also intercepted a pass and Jon Hunter and Glen Doty recovered fumbles. Chris Damoules, Pat Bolme and Jeff Nichols combined for 12 unassisted tackles.

The Livermore Vikings stopped the Dublin Knights 14-6 in another defensive-oriented game. The win cinched second place for the Vikings.

The Vikings took the lead on a 27-yard pass from quarterback Kevin Trudeau to John Patlansky which set up a one-yard score by Bob Peterson. Patlansky kicked the two-point conversion.

Livermore scored again in the second quarter on a four-yard run by Jesse Velasquez. The PAT failed.

Chris Elbert scored the Knight touchdown on a 76-yard interception return in the fourth period.

Peterson led the winners with 158 yards rushing, including a 33-yard run to set up a touchdown. The Vikes passed for 21 yards and rushed for 262.

Tony Powers, Dave Torres, Mike Miller, Peterson, Pat Cerruti and Dave Plaster starred on defense for the victors.

Matt Hart recovered a fumbled and sparked the Knight defense. Elbert, Doug McNeill and Steve Smith also did well on defense for Dublin.

The Dublin Squires routed the Livermore Warriors 35-0.

The winners hit the scoreboard early on a 20-yard reverse by Todd Cambra following a 24-yard run by Rich Anglemeyer. Brett Howell scored the PAT on a run. Oliver Gangnuss scored the second Squire touchdown on a four-yard plunge. Howell passed to Derek Mitchell for the PAT.

The Squires scored again in the third quarter on a 26-yard pass from halfback Jim Neach to Les Townsend.

Neach added a 42-yard run for another Squire score. Todd Cambra ran 32 yards for another TD and Jeff Vella and Vic Romaine sacked a Warrior in the end zone for a safety.

Vince Hahlbeck, Steve Pate, Ken Martin and George Miner all did well on defense for the winners. Miner recovered two fumbles and Steve Clausen blocked a punt.

Sullivan drops close one

Despite running a temperature, San Ramon's Bill Sullivan put up a tremendous fight in the main event of the Cowboys Fight Against Cancer boxing card last week at the Grand National at the Cow Palace.

Sullivan battled Dominic Genco of San Jose, a rodeo bulldogger, in the 10-round main event. Genco won an extremely close decision. There were no knockdowns and the 1,500 fans on hand at the Stockyards Club (on the grounds of the Cow Palace) cheered both fighters repeatedly.

Proceeds from the boxing program go to the cancer fund and the Sierra Rodeo Cowboys Association, both to aid rodeo personnel and their families.

Sullivan is a partner in Equesco, a San Ramon firm that sells horse barn equipment, and has shown horses in numerous competitions throughout the west since he was 7 years of age.

Sullivan is a resident of Davona Drive in San Ramon.

Ex-DVC signal-caller gets the nod for Bears

SAN FRANCISCO — Mike White likes to put announcements into perspective.

So when, on the tenth week of the football season, he decided to change starting quarterbacks there wasn't a lot of fanfare. It wasn't even the first item on the University of California coach's agenda yesterday afternoon.

"This isn't going to revolutionize football," he said, while revealing that Gary Graumann, the former Diablo Valley College and Miramonte High School signal-caller will start over center for the Bears Saturday against Oregon.

Graumann, a 5-11 walk-on, caught the fancy of Bear rooters when he rallied Cal to the winning touchdown against Missouri on the third weekend of the season. Charlie Young was back at quarterback the next week.

Now, White says, "Gary deserves the opportunity to be our starting quarterback. We want to see if he can be the starter, it's easy to come off the bench."

Then White, who prides himself on clarity, confused a few listeners.

"This is no reflection on Charlie Young being a reason for our lack of success last weekend (when Washington eliminated the Bears from the Rose Bowl race, 50-31)," he said, pointing out Young's presence among the all-time Cal passing and total offense leaders.

He added, however, "Our lack of offensive consistency is something Charlie Young is responsible for." "The loss of (fullback) Paul Jones (to injury) puts more pressure on the quarterback," White explained. "We need consistency and a guy who can master our offense and make the big plays without turnovers."

"The way Gary's responded in the past makes us believe he's the best choice this week."

Graumann may be the best choice, but even with defensive ends Ralph DeLoach and Don Alaman, linebacker Greg Bracelin and Jones lost to injuries, and even with a pair of back-up linebackers switching to defensive end and a walk-on, John McMahon, filling an inside linebacker post, Donald Duck might be a good choice to QB Cal past his northern cousins.

The Ducks are winless in Pacific-8 play and have only a win over Texas Christian to their credit. Oregon has Willie Blasher, one of the few defenders to bring down UCLA's Theotis Brown all by his lonesome this, or any other, season.

After that, it gets thin. "Cal presents a special problem with their balanced attack," said Oregon head coach Rich Brooks by phone from Eugene, where the game will be played. He joked, "We're going to play 14 men."

How can a guy like that laugh? Aren't 1-8 coaches supposed to be over in the library xeroxing their resume and licking a couple dozen postage stamps?

"The people in Eugene are hanging in there," Brooks explained. "They knew they had problems with their football program and they knew Rich Brooks wasn't gonna come in and perform miracles."

A minor miracle, a win over Cal, isn't likely to be in the cards Saturday, despite the dose of pessimism offered by White.

"We have to be on our toes this week; we're a very beat-up football team," the Lafayette resident said. "You get locked into a system and then all the injuries happen and you have to shore it up somehow."

"You can depart too far nine weeks into the season. Our offense is going to have to be simple and it has to be something we can make work," he added. "I don't know what we're going to do."

White comes equipped to handle the rollercoaster ride his team has taken this season, however.

"John Ralston (whom he assisted at Stanford) always said there are a lot of peaks and valleys in this game — we've hit 'em both on back-to-back weeks."

Dave Weber Up off the canvas On Sports

SAN FRANCISCO — Technically, Stanford is still capable of becoming the Pacific-8's Rose Bowl representative. Realistically, Bill Walsh couldn't care less.

The soft-spoken Cardinal head coach came back from Stanford's 49-0 shellacking at the hands of front-runner USC with his drollery in tact and his mind on reachable goals.

He doesn't want to hear what will happen if team A beats team B and team C ties team A and team B loses to a non-conference foe and a four-way tie develops or a three-way tie develops and men from Mars kidnap Charles White or men from the Moon reclaim Warren of Washington.

Lynn Stiles

"I never made any grandiose promises," he said. "We're not a bad team, we're a good team. We've got a pair of traditional opponents (San Jose State and California) coming up and we have a good chance to finish with a fine record."

Walsh, who played at San Jose State when Stanford ran up a 50-plus score on the Spartans, said, "We were devastated by Southern Cal."

"Fortunately, or maybe unfortunately, I've been on both sides of scores like that, so I should be able to take it in stride," he said, adding slyly, "It's a pleasure to be back here...among friends."

Neither Walsh nor his players were laughing about the slaughter, which proved, if nothing else, that seven times seven can leave nothing for mid-peninsula academicians. Neither were they crying.

"We've got two more to go," pointed out wide receiver Bill Kellar, seventh in career receptions for the Cards after passing Randy Vataha with six catches against the Trojans. "Had it been the season-end, it would have been disappointing."

"We just have to try and come out of it — the SC game is over — we can still go 8-3," he added. "Looking over our schedule before the season, I knew we could win seven games. Maybe eight or nine."

Lynn Stiles, the Spartan coach, fears Stanford will be in a nasty frame of mind after a humiliation that surprised him.

"I expected a much closer game," said Stiles. "If I was a betting man, though, I would have taken USC after they'd been embarrassed two weeks in a row."

He expects his own team will have trouble with Stanford.

"The strong point of our team is we show up for every game," Stiles said sardonically. His team has gone from a would-be power to barely-Division I in little more than a year. "Stanford's a better football team than we are."

"From an offensive point of view, they dissect you; defensively, they hit you and they hit you hard," he said. The Spartans, though 1-1-1 with Stanford the last three seasons, have problems.

Their defense, classified as "not too good" by Stiles, is also the strong point of the club, with players like Gerald Small, the cornerback coming off a five-week injury absence, Frank Manumaiuna, the UCLA and DeAnza college transfer, at linebacker along with Dublin's Rayford Roberson.

"Everyone's entitled to his own opinion," said Small, present when Stiles put a mild rap on his own ballclub. "I think we're a pretty good team, it might have been different (the Spartans are 4-5) if we didn't have all the injuries."

"I hope coach Stiles was just kidding." Small will have plenty to occupy himself with after the earlier, 1 p.m., kick-off Saturday. James Lofton and Kellar provide a potent entry for Guy Benjamin, still the Pac-8's leading passer, to aim for.

Kellar doesn't mind being called Stanford's "other" wide receiver. Small, apotential National Football League draft choice, will be dogging Lofton's every cut.

"I'll be seeing a lot of Lofton," smiled Small, adding, "Hopefully, from the front." Last season Small was burned once by Lofton, but came back to intercept a pass intended for James later in Stanford's 28-23 win.

Says Kellar, "I like seeing James on the other side. Gerald's the best athlete San Jose has. I don't know who'll be guarding me, but at least it won't be Gerald."

Or, to be cruel, Ricky Odom, or Dennis Thurman, or Willie Crawford, or Larry Brazil...

Raiders earn 'Hawks' awe

By DAVE WEBER

OAKLAND — The Oakland Raiders buried the Seattle Seahawks alive, 44-7, Sunday at the Coliseum.

This was no macabre medieval execution. Seattle will recover. The black-shirted bully just kicked more sand into 'Hawk faces than they could handle.

There were no dirges played in the locker room of the thoroughly beaten young 'Hawks. There was dissatisfaction and perhaps some embarrassment at the sudden turn-around from Seattle's 56-17 rout of Buffalo the week before.

And there was an undercurrent of respect, if not awe, for the reigning world champs. An offensive lineman moaned, "Did you see that (Charles) Philyaw? He's nothing but a 280-pound guard."

A defensive counterpart scoffed at his colleague's troubles with the Raider defensive end, saying, "Yeah? Well, how 'bout (Gene) Upshaw and those guys?"

And, then, there's Jim Zorn. Or, should we say, heeere's Jimmy.

Zorn, gentlemen, scholar, filler of notepads, The Magic Christian, is a budding talk show host.

He may have lost a duel of the National Football League's only active left-handed quarterbacks, but, in defeat, Zorn is more entertaining than many winners. And he won't take an easy out.

His teammates talk of the Raiders in hushed tones and take solace in staying on their collective feet for the full 60 minutes.

"That we're a second year team is not the point," said Zorn after the loss. "We know what we're supposed to do. It's disappointing; we prepared all week and the coaches put in all those hours..."

The Raider defense was too good, too conservative, says Zorn, for the 'Hawks to consider repeating their near point - a minute performance against the O.J.-less Bills. There was no mediocre blitz to throw over.

"I like Oakland's style," said Zorn, speaking for the moment as a disinterested observer. "They rush three men and drop eight back to cover. They say, 'let's see if you can throw.' We couldn't."

"Oakland's got some big guys. Usually you have to look over the rush to read the coverage. With these guys," he quipped, "you have to look everywhere, even between their legs."

So far, according to Zorn, we've got a big, conservative, confident defense. And, one might add, the Raider defenders are adaptable.

"They were playing a lot of zone, so we tried to take advantage of that. They just shifted to a man and blew our zone routes," Zorn said.

Wide receiver Steve Largent, a favorite target who caught only one of Zorn's eight completions this time, agreed.

"Last week we forced Buffalo to follow our game plan. Oakland forced us to play theirs," the Tulsa graduate said. "They made us run into areas they had covered."

What about intimidation? Does the villainous Raider secondary say much during a game?

"Oh, yeah, they talk a little," Zorn smiled. "Like, 'Hey, could you please help me fix my chin strap...' or 'Oh darn it, I should have caught that one...' or 'heck, I missed him.'"

Verbatim quotes? Another smile. Heck, no, we can assume.

The quarterback joked, buthead coach Jack Patera chose not to. Flipping through his mental card catalogue to the "Comments After Defeat" section, Patera revealed little and said it all.

"The Raiders," he said. "Took away everything."

Todd Murray booms a winning punt Sunday.

Todd wins PP & K

OAKLAND — Todd Murray of Livermore won the 8-year-old Area competition of the Ford Dealers of America's Punt, Pass and Kick held prior to the Oakland Raiders - Seattle Seahawks contest Sunday.

Murray, sponsored by Milt Codiroli of Codiroli Ford, defeated Neil Carter of Willows, California. He had previously won competitions at the Local, Zone and District levels.

The Area champions will advance to the Division Championships to be held in Houston December 18. All 12 of the Division champions and their parents will then travel as guests of the Ford Motor Company to Super Bowl XII in New Orleans for the National finals.

Trout plantings aid anglers

Local fishing holes proved disappointing last week but new plantings of rainbow trout could ease anglers' itch, the East Bay Regional Park District reports.

At Shadow Cliffs Lake in Pleasanton, fishing was reported as "variable" as anglers standing side by side using identical baits were ranging in success from no trout to limits. Red salmon eggs, marshmallows and Zeke's floating cheese baits are bringing in the trout and an occasional two-pound channel catfish. Bluegill fishing is sporadic and "usually non-existent." Some 1,500 rainbow trout were planted by the Department of Fish and Game here Nov. 1.

At Del Valle Lake in Livermore, the water temperature has not dropped enough to prompt trout activity. The cooling may however be the reason bluegill fishing has suddenly dropped off. Angling success for all species was very low at .21 fish per angler hour.

At Lake Chabot near Castro Valley, trout action has slowed somewhat with an average 1.2 trout being taken. Casting with the "superduper" or Kastmaster is producing some nice rainbows from shore as well as for the boat angler. Anglers trolling with "ford fender" and "cowbell" rigs (triple teasers) are outscoring shore anglers who are using marshmallows and eggs.

At Lafayette Reservoir, rainbow trout fishing has picked up to average one fish per angler hour, with crappie a slow to fair second. The coves at the back of the lake and at the east end of the dam are the best spots for taking trout. Black crappie are holding at about a 10-foot depth and early morning anglers are scoring the best. Red and yellow crappie jigs are best. Success for black bass, bluegill and catfish is rated zero. Some 1,740 one-third pound rainbow trout were planted here Oct. 27.

At San Pablo Reservoir near Orinda, action has slowed since last week, especially for shore anglers. The catch rate was a good .55 fish per angler hour for all species. The creel census shows that 1,171 anglers spent an average 4.9 hours each to catch the following: 3,006 rainbow trout, 75 carp, 36 channel catfish, 15 largemouth bass, and four crappie. Some 2,500 one-third pound rainbow trout were planted by the Department of Fish and Game Nov. 2.

At Contra Loma Lake near Antioch, channel catfishing has been quite slow over the past few weeks. The two to five pound cats being caught are taking anchovies and some night crawlers on a heavily weighted double hook setup. Sacramento squaw fish to 14 inches are supplying some action with one-half pound largemouth bass also caught occasionally on anchovies.

At Lake Comanche in the Mother Lode above Stockton, bluegills and crappie action is rated as good with "mighty mealys" and red worms the best bait for bluegill. White, red and white, yellow and black crappie jigs are best for crappie. Black bass action is fair to good on deep-diving rebels, the balsa-B, and six-inch plastic worms in purple, black, red and green.

It costs $1 to test the panel. Winners will be determined by the side with the most "stumps."

All proceeds will be donated to the Blind Center.

Butte defense derails LMC

OROVILLE — The Los Medanos College Mustangs have finally been pinned with their first official loss. LMC, which has displayed a high-powered offense all season, was stymied by Butte College, 21-0, Saturday afternoon.

Offensive mistakes set up all three Roadrunner scores, as the hosts won for the fourth time in a row to improve their record to 4-5. LMC is now 7-1.

The contest, however, was a non-conference affair and the Mustangs remain atop the Camino Norte Conference standings with one game left. They will host Contra Costa College Friday night at Liberty High in Brentwood.

The first Butte score came after Mike Sims had a punt bounce off his shoulder pads in the first quarter and the Roadrunners recovered at the LMC 37.

High court decides nuclear liability

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether Congress may place a $560-million ceiling on liability that operators of nuclear power plants would face from a major nuclear accident.

The justices said they will study a ruling by a federal judge in North Carolina last March striking down as unconstitutional the liability limit law passed by Congress in 1957.

The federal government said U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan's decision, if not overturned, "could stand as a major impediment to further private development of nuclear energy in this nation."

Separate appzals from McMillan's decision were filed by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Duke Power Co.

The controversy stems from a lawsuit filed by the Carolina Environmental Study Group against Duke Power involving two power plants under construction in the Charlotte, N.C., area - the Catawba Nuclear Station on Lake Wylie, about 15 miles southwest of Charlotte, and the McGuire Nuclear Station on Lake Norman, about 17 miles northwest of the city.

The environmental group challenged the federal law that, as amended, fixes $560,000 as the maximum amount all persons could recover for injury, death or property damage in the event of a major nuclear catastrophe.

McMillan ruled in a 61-page decision that the liability limit law, called the Price-Anderson Act, unconstitutionally infringes on individuals' rights of equal protection and due process.

He said Charlotte-area residents "are threatened with certain injury of relatively minor nature, and with the reasonable likelihood of major or perhaps catastrophic injury, without assurance of adequate compensation if that should occur."

In urging the court to set aside the trial judge's decision, government attorneys said private operators such as Duke Power need to be insulated from excessive liability insurance costs.

"The act serves the dual purpose of removing the deterrent to private participation in nuclear energy programs that had been presented by the lack of adequate insurance to cover liability claims," the government said.

Justice Department lawyers said the act also provides benefits for victims of "nuclear incidents," such as making plant operators liable without fault for damages and allowing for hikes in the liability ceiling.

They estimated that by 1985 the total liability figure would exceed $1 billion.

In other actions today, the Supreme Court:

— Refused to review a $214,000 libel judgment against TODAY, a Brevard County, Fla., newspaper. The newspaper had asked the court to rule that public officials and public figures are not entitled to punitive damages in libel suits.

— Declined to consider expanding the scope of a controversial 1976 decision that closed the doors to federal courts for many state prisoners.

Veto override unlikely on breeder reactor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress probably will not try to override President Carter's veto of a bill authorizing $80 million for a breeder reactor project he wants halted, congressional sources said today.

Aides to both backers and foes of the project agreed there is little likelihood that the veto could be overturned.

"There is strong opposition among both the House and the Senate leadership against even bringing it up," said one source.

Both houses must vote by a two-thirds margin to override a veto.

The fact that most members of Congress have left town for a three-week recess — while House and Senate energy conferees work on a compromise national energy bill — makes it unlikely that any serious effort will be launched to override Carter's veto.

Members of the energy conference committee resumed work today on the nontax portions of energy bills passed by the House and Senate. Later in the week, a second conference group will begin working on tax provisions.

In his first veto message since taking office, Carter said Saturday that the Clinch River breeder project in Oak Ridge, Tenn., would "imperil the administration's policy to curb proliferation of nuclear weapons technology."

However, the issue was clouded by the fact that both House and Senate have agreed to include the $80 million in another bill — one containing nearly $7 billion in funds for a wide variety of federal programs.

In an effort to make it more difficult for Carter to kill the project, breeder backers managed to get both houses to include a provision in that funding bill to require the money to be spent even should Carter veto — as he did — the other bill.

Critics of the reactor are now urging Carter to veto this bill, too, when it reaches his desk. The bill has been approved by a House-Senate conference committee — including the $80 million for the breeder — and is expected to win congressional approval later in the month.

It was not immediately clear whether Carter was considering a second veto of this funding bill.

However, administration backers in Congress noted that even if Carter fails to veto the spending bill, there is a procedure under which he could refuse to spend the breeder money.

But such an impoundment of funds would give breeder proponents another crack at the project because Congress has 45 days in which to overturn any presidential decision to withhold funds.

Breeder reactors produce more nuclear fuel than they consume, but the fuel manufactured is plutonium, which is capable of being diverted for use in atomic weapons.

Carter wants the project halted as part of his program to halt the world-wide spread of bomb-suitable nuclear materials.

Power plant closure stirred by Sandia

WASHINGTON — The Union of Concerned Scientists (UCS) has petitioned the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) calling for a shut down of all operating reactors in nuclear power plants.

UCS claims that electrical connectors and cables used in the power plants possess "grave safety deficiencies" based on tests run on the equipment at Sandia Laboratories in New Mexico.

In a statement released over the weekend, the NRC said no closure is warranted because "UCS has misconstrued the safety significance of the test results."

According to the NRC, the Sandia program involved testing of certain electrical connectors and other electrical equipment to determine environmental conditions following a loss of coolant accident.

The NRC staff acknowledged that electrical connectors failed in the Sandia tests but noted that such connectors are not being used in safety systems present in a loss of coolant accident.

Other tests performed by Sandia confirmed the NRC staff position that fire protection requirements should not rely solely on current flame retardancy and electrical cable separation standards. The NRC said that Sandia's report should include the additional measures now required.

The Sandia tests show that existing separation and fire retardancy standards for safety cables "are not sufficient by themselves." Sandia officials are advising the NRC to provide additional licensing requirements such as fire barriers between cable trays, fire detection systems and sprinkler systems to extinguish fires.

The NRC said that fire protection measures at all nuclear power plants has been upgraded since the fire at Alabama's Brown's Ferry Nuclear Power Plant in 1975.

The NRC is in the process of contacting all operators of the 65 nuclear power plants in operation as well as those under construction to advise them of electrical safety situation.
